

FUNDING YOUR ADOPTION

Adoption costs can feel overwhelming. It's important to remember that you are not alone—we have seen God provide financially for families countless times. There are so many ways to make adoption a reality for your family!

“As operators of a small family farm, we were counting on having two crop years to help finance our adoption. Well, the Lord's perfect timing is bringing our daughter to us much sooner! Our process will be right around 12 months in total. As we were traveling to visit family for Thanksgiving, we were discussing how we will generate the remaining funds, which are a large sum at the end of the adoption journey. During our discussion and worry, I checked our email on my phone, and we had been awarded the Xiamen Special Treasures Grant! God is so good! Why did we worry?” –Andrew and Kylie Prasuhn, AGCI Adoptive Parents to Sadie Mei

ADOPTION GRANTS

“We feel absolutely called by the LORD to add this precious boy to our family, but the costs and the fast pace have been scary. Getting word that we, once again, have been chosen to be grant recipients at a crucial point in our adoption process is a tremendous blessing and a great encouragement.” –David & Kallie Locklair, AGCI Adoptive Parents to Jahleel and Connor

ADOPTION GRANTS:

Some families are able to supplement their adoption with adoption grants. Since 2005, AGCI families have received just over $5 million in adoption grants. Most foundations require a completed home study or even a referral before approving a family for a grant. Most grants are given to families open to adopting children with specialized needs, older children, or siblings. Grants are often needs-based, and typically, families with incomes of less than $125,000 are eligible to apply. In addition to the grant resources listed below, families should also research adoption grant opportunities specific to their state, church, and organizations they are a member of.

AGCI Grants:

- To date, AGCI has awarded over $1 million in adoption grants to families.
- The AGCI Fund - Established in 1997, the AGCI Fund provides financial assistance to AGCI families who adopt waiting children with specialized needs, older children, or sibling groups.
- Brittany’s Hope Grant - Brittany’s Hope Foundation is a non-profit dedicated to aiding the adoption of children with specialized needs, sibling groups, or older waiting children by providing adoption grants to qualifying families. Since 2007, 150+ AGCI families have received grants from $3,000 to $20,000 totaling more than $1.1 million. www.brittanyshope.org

FUNDRAISING

FUNDRAISING

Fundraising is a great way to engage your local community in your adoption and raise funds and awareness about the orphan crisis. Many families take the opportunity to create their own personal products to promote their adoption, like T-shirts, which others can wear in support. Other families set up a crowdfunding or an adoption fundraising webpage where their family and friends can make tax-deductible donations toward their adoption expenses.

EMPLOYEE AND MILITARY BENEFITS

EMPLOYEE BENEFITS

Many U.S. corporations, including Wendy's, Home Depot, Intel, Johnson & Johnson, and Hewlett-Packard, offer adoption assistance to their employees. Benefits range from extended paid leave or unpaid leave to cash payments or adoption reimbursements of $1,000 to $25,000. Currently, there are more than 500 corporations that assist families with adoption costs.

If your company does not currently offer this benefit, consider asking them to! Adoption benefits are considered good personnel practice, and qualified adoption plans receive favorable treatment from the IRS on a company's tax return. Adoptive Families Magazine has a great article entitled "How to Lobby Your Employer for Adoption Benefits."

<https://www.adoptivefamilies.com/adoption-process/lobby-for-employee-adoption-benefits>

MILITARY BENEFITS

There is a one-time subsidy program available for full-time military personnel. Adoptive families can receive up to $2,000 per child or $5,000 for siblings. Military families are also entitled to adoption benefits of up to $2,000 a year for reasonable and necessary expenses associated with adoptions.

Benefits Cover the Following:

- Public and private adoption fees charged by an agency in a foreign country.
- Placement fees, including fees charged to adoptive families for counseling.
- Legal fees in connection with services that are unavailable to military personnel through their legal assistance office.
- Medical and hospital expenses of a newborn.
- Medical expenses incurred by a birthmother.
- Benefits are paid after an adoption is finalized and apply to both singles and couples.

TAX BENEFITS

TAX BENEFITS

Most adoptive parents are eligible for federal tax credits. To learn more, check out the IRS Topic No. 607, "Adoption Credit and Adoption Assistance Programs" from the link below. Contact your state's Division of Family Services and State Tax Office to ask about your state's tax credits for adoption, or to find out if you qualify for any special state subsidy programs.

Federal Adoption Tax Credit:
<http://www.irs.gov/taxtopics/tc607>

Dependency Exemption

Adoptive parents may take the same dependency exemption on their income taxes for their adopted children as they would for their biological children. This exemption reduces a family's taxable income. It's important to remember that families must provide more than half of their children's support to list them as exemptions.

State Subsidies/Reimbursement for Non-Recurring Expenses

A reimbursement for non-recurring adoption expenses (agency fees, legal costs, and transportation) is available through many states for families who adopt children with specialized needs. In some cases, these subsidies apply to internationally adopted children. Half of the expenses are paid through state funds and the other half through federal funds up to $2,000.

ADOPTION LOANS

“Words cannot express how grateful we are for the added security of an adoption grant as we navigate through an ongoing path of medical appointments, therapies, and other procedures for our sweet girl.” –Ben and Bethany Cirola, AGCI Adoptive Parents to Ayla

ADOPTION LOANS

If you own your own home, you may be eligible for a home equity loan, or you may be able to refinance your mortgage. Often the interest is tax deductible. Also, many banks offer home equity lines of credit. Rates on these loans are often low and the interest is also tax deductible. Your bank may have a special loan program for adoptive parents.

Some financial institutions offer low-interest loans with special terms strictly for adoption expenses. The National Adoption Foundation (NAF), American Christian Credit Union, Child Welfare League of America (CWLA), Funds4Families, MBNA, and First Union Bank of Maryland offer loans for adoptive parents. Lastly, many life insurance companies have a provision in their whole life insurance policies that will permit you to borrow a percentage of the cash value at a low-interest rate.

Several non-profit organizations also offer low/no-interest loans that are specifically for adopting families and often have flexible or covenant-based loan terms tailored to the adoption process.
